† via Shanghai.

THE community of Hongkong, will have ascertained with pleasure from the advices brought by the French mail, that there was merely the candid and straight-forward statement of the directors, to account for the unfavorable rumors touching the affairs of the Commercial Bank which were in circulation here some weeks ago. The directors in London in anticipation of the general meeting of shareholders convened for the 26th instant, have issued a report in which the losses which the Bank has incurred are acknowledged with the utmost candour, and faced with courage. The rumors which related to other matters, were altogether baseless, or at any rate can only be explained by the extraordinary carelessness with which the telegrams we receive through India, are transmitted. The occurrence of this rumour, which we now regret having noticed even for the sake of allaying the fears to which it was calculated to give rise, will be a warning to residents in China, not to place any reliance on the exactitude of telegraphic statements from England.

Even the statement of the losses of the Bank was nearly doubled, and the rumor of the dishonor of their bills was utterly false. Taking the reserve fund against the declared losses, and the profit of the year to boot, really the difficiency will be a trifle, although to shareholders it will be an annoyance not receiving their dividend. At the very time the unfavorable rumors were current here, there was a run on the Bank for its local notes, which was not only met, but heavy remittances to other branches are known to have been made.

WHEN, in a pause from the hurry of a busy life, we, the inhabitants of Hongkong, look round at the state in which the colony now finds itself, at its position in the commercial world, the pecuniary means at its disposal, the results which have been achieved towards creating a town on the shore of an island as far removed, twenty-five years since, from anything resembling civilisation as the wildest haunt of sea gulls in the desolate ocean, at the quays and public works which have been constructed, the handsome English homes that have been reared on the hillside, and the princely charities that have been established; when we look at these things comprehensively, the first impulse undoubtedly is to wonder at the marvellous metamorphosis that has been brought about. As for the second impulse, however, we really think that when the existence of Hongkong is contemplated in a philosophical spirit, the second impulse is to wonder that the place is not larger than it has already become. It is wonderful that it has grown so fast, but perhaps it is more wonderful that it has not grown faster.

These propositions having a tendency to conflict with one another taight possibly require some modification, but if so, such modification could be readily supplied. The fundamental idea of each is sound. Absolutely, having no regard to the circumstances in which this colony has been placed, its growth has been a very splendid illustration of Anglo Saxon enterprise. The change wrought here since a time within the mature memory of men not yet old, is a change of a magical sort. When we look back to the records of old Canton times, when the foreign trade with China was carried on in the face of an opposition so determined and so idiotic in its nature, that nothing, but the ruling passion of mankind for dollars, could have induced the merchants to bear it patiently, and conquer it by degrees, it seems as if we were reading of the seventeenth century, and adventures of early voyagers. In London men were busy with Reform even as they are now, they managed to deal successfully with Reform which we at present are very far from doing, they fought railway bills in committee, Europe had grown quiet after being for so many years all of the French revolution, and the constitutional monarchy of July matured and gradually approached its termination, the Prima Donna who even now is announced to sing during this coming season at the opera was already on the stage, the Queen who opened this session of Parliament now going on was already used to the work. London in fact was in all respects what it is now, barring some rings of houses added since at the suburbs and a new railway station or so, and far away on a semi-mythical coast, so remote that it seemed to be in another planet, an unknown hillock lay among the crevices of the shore, a storm washed morsel of creation that Providence had forgotten all about, leaving it to be haunted by a few fierce water-savages. There are men who have spent the time since then, with hardly any interruption, in oscillating back and forward between offices in the city, and houses in the Regent's Park, who could scarcely believe that an interval of time which seems to have passed so quickly, could work such an effect as it has wrought in Hongkong. For five thousand years, or ten millions, or at any rate over since the begining of things,—theologians and geologists are still fighting about the time, and docile lookers—on remain in painful suspence,—for the interval of time which elapsed between the period at which the world was first promoted to the status of an independent planet, and the year 1840, Hongkong had a quiet life and jogged on round the sun, basking to its heart's content in vertical rays, indifferent to mail steamers, and ignorant of all the cutting and looking, road making and draining which hills in other parts of the world had long since been doomed to undergo. The change was slow in coming, the world was growing civilised in a great many places, but Hongkong seemed to be still forgotten. A third of the nineteenth century passed by, without bringing a change, but its term of isolation was over, its new destiny was settled. It was rescued from the petrified grasp of hide-bound Asiatics, Harlequin waved an English fing across the hills, and the trance was over:—

A touch, a kiss, the charm was cnapt.
There rose a noise of striking clocks,
Of feet that ran o'ftoors thai clapt,
Of barking dogs and crowing cocks.
A fuller light illumined all;
A breeze through all the garden swept,
A sudden bubbly shock the hall.
And sixty feet the fountain leapt.

Hongkong is twenty-six years old, for the other thousands do not count, and already it is what we see it, the greatest, handsomest, and richest city of the Far East, to equal which we must travel to Calcutta, while if we put the towns of British India out of the calculation we might sweep a circle round it on the globe with a radius of 5000 miles and not include another place by which it is in any way surpassed. "That's so," as the listeners exclaim at an American meeting, but with all this there is another view which may be taken of the whole subject. Hongkong is the greatest entrepôt for the trade of an empire so extensive that the estimates of its population differ by hundreds of millions. It has become so only within a limited time, but it is so now and in all probability will continue so, to the end of the chapter. The opening of Northern ports may divert some of the trade which would have passed through Hongkong if no treaty of Tientsin had ever been arranged, but unless some one succeeds in melting the ice in the Arctic ocean, so as to make the north-west passage a practicable route, Hongkong must always represent China so far as the bulk of European trade is concerned. Of course Chinese trade has hitherto been very much shackled, and is so still in comparison with the trade of civilised states, but so much intercourse takes place already between China and the western nations that it is quite impossible the obstructiveness of the Chinese government should continue in force very much longer. Adyte may keep in the contents of a reservoir while none of it trickles through, but once make way for a little stream, and the gap will widen with ever-increasing rapidity till the water bursts the barrier in an overwhelming volume. Hongkong may be proud of its growth, but it is still a seed, and this is a fact which it is important for those who rule the colony to keep in view. How often do the people of great cities lament, saying, "if we could only build Soundoscheter again, how far better we could make it, but now it is unmanageable!" We have built a few houses and sewers, but we have not yet done more than begin to build the Hongkong of twenty-five years hence.

SHANGHAI.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

SHANGHAI, May, 23rd 1866.

Shanghai has for the last week been upon the tip-toe of expectation as to the result of a trial which was advertised to come off at the Supreme Court. The model settlement though it shrugs its shoulders and is cordurily condemnatory of the unfortunate Editor who happens to exceed the strictest bounds of public news and ventures in over so mild a manner, to notice matter from Club disputes downwards, which may in any way be thought of a private nature, dearly loves a little bit of scandal. A story got about, that a young gentleman had in performing that elegant dance, the Lancers at a recent Race Ball, exceeded the limits of hand touching allowed by custom and in fact being desirous of shewing himself no "muff" he did not lay hold a lady's hand without squeezing it. The scandal lovers of course exaggerated the affair which from all accounts was of a trivial and ridiculous nature, until the one crew if even he existed, got enlarged into the usual three. The fiction came to the ears of the lady's husband, who being favored with an unexpected visit from the supposed delinquent shortly afterwards, ejected him in a manner more summary than agreable overcoming the vis inertiæ inherent in all bodies, by the application if a certain amount of external force, in the form a kick. The young gentleman being considerably the inferior of his assailant in physique philosophically took the accident as it came, but wrote and demanded an apology. This not being granted the petition of C. H. Dallas, versus J. P. Tate was filed in the Supreme Court, Mr. Pollard Q. C. of Hongkong and Mr. Myburgh a rising Barrister at this place, acting for the Plaintiff, while Mr. Bennie, I believe also known in Hongkong, acted for the Defendant. The public of course looked forward to a trial which would afford all the amusement of a Bardell v. Pickwick case, and Mr. Pollard was expected to eclipse his antitype Box Fox. The trial came off yesterday in a crowded Court and the opening speech was every thing that could be expected. Mr. Pollard making a magnificent bit setting, the whole audience into a laugh, and then turning round with unperturbed countenance and saying that his learned friend, (who by the way, was looking as serious as his judge himself,) might consider the matter a joke and might laugh but when a big man kicks a little man &c., &c., the matter might be laughable but he entirely failed see it. On the whole, however, the public were rather disappointed as the circumstances which set the story that mixed the defendants wife all at was not alluded to and indeed seems to have been such a silly affair that it could have formed no palliation. A verdict of $400 for the Plaintiff was given and the litigants, beyond the pleasure of affording a good day's amusement to the public, had very little satisfaction for the pains to which they put themselves. The obstinacy of the Chinese Government and their continued obstructiveness to foreigners and foreign trade have received another exemplification in the manner in which an attempt, made by Mr. Major, (a gentleman well known in the Silk trade) to effect arrangements for preparing cocoons up the country, has been frustrated. This gentleman proceeded to Kahing for the purpose of buying such cocoons as he required, but having found by experience that it was almost impossible to lease houses from the Chinese for the purpose of carrying on the process of killing the insects, he determined to get his Chinese Compradore to erect an iron house. To this the local authorities at first assented, but after a little time when the forks had been proceeded with to a certain point, they pounced down upon it, evidently with the view of making squeezes, and ultimately were so obstructive that Mr. Major was forced to beat a retreat and has laid the matter before H. B. M. Consul. There I imagine it will end; as the notion of getting the representatives of British power to stir an inch out of their way in such a matter is beyond the hopes of the most sanguine, and most people have come to the conclusion that the great prospects held out by the Treaty are more or less share and a delusion. There is hardly a single clause that has not been the subject of dispute, and in every dispute the the Chinese have got the best of the matter. News with regard to Mr. Consul Morrison who started from Pekin with a view to making the journey overland from that place to Hankow, and was subsequently reported as murdered, has been received and he is shortly expected in Shanghai.

A fire of some magnitude broke out last night at the spirit store of Mr. Geo. Smith which together with the drug shop of Dr. Vernon was entirely destroyed. The property in both cases was I hear insured. Beyond these few items little worth noticing has occurred.

COMMERCIAL. Business has been limited during the past fortnight; chiefly owing to there being little money in the hands of the natives. In Imports there has been a fair amount of business transacted but as a considerable reduction on last mail's quotations. In Exports some quantity of new Silk has been contracted for and master holes are expected in time for next mail. Only 34 bales China Silk have been settled since last English mail. Musters of the new Teas have arrived from Hankow but are not favorably reported on. Tonnage is scarce, and high rates of freight are anticipated. Exchange has deduced considerably, owing to the Banks being anxious buyers while the merchants have placed a large quantity of sterling at favorable rates in anticipation of the new Tea and Silk shipments. Closing Rate on London Bank Bills 6 months sight, 6/2½.

NEWS FROM THE NORTH.

Fortnightly Summary.

SHANGHAI.

A new instance of the determined opposition which the Chinese officials are making against the spread of European influence in the interior of the Empire has recently attracted some attention. Mr. Major, a gentleman well known in the Silk Trade, desired to have an iron house erected near Kahing, about 120 miles from Shanghai, for the purpose of preparing Cocoons, but the Mandarins, after first giving his compradore permission to put up the house subsequently altered their mind and insisted upon the structure being taking down. Mr. Major has laid the matter before H. B. M.'s Consul. We are glad to learn that a letter was received at Chefoo on the 12th inst. from Consul Morrison, who is traveling from Peking overland to Hankow, and about whose safety grave doubts have for some time p st been entertained.

The monthly meeting of the Municipal Council took place on the 8th inst, when the reports from the committees were handed in and passed, and other routine business transacted. There are two points of importance to notice. A letter has been received from the United States Consul General relative to the Sampan office opposite Messrs. A. Heard & Co's, but through some omission is not given in the report. Permission has been granted for the erection of a new boat-house on the Soochow creek above Will's Bridge, but the Secretary of the Boat Club has been referred to the Harbor Master as to extending it into the river further than low water mark, on the grounds that the Council have not jurisdiction beyond that point. As regards the Yangkingpang, the Council are of opinion that the work of clearing it out should be proceeded with in the hope of completing them before the hot weather fairly sets in. A draft contract for lighting the settlement has been placed in the hands of the Finance Committee for their approval. The Chamber of Commerce are taking steps to revise the scale of Wharfage Dues; a measure extremely desirable on account of the unequal manner in which these taxes press upon the various classes of goods in proportion to their values. Adverting to the old scale a bale of silk, value probably Tls. 300, paid 3 cents, while as coming under the head of "miscellaneous," a case of wipe, perhaps worth Tls. 8 to Tls. 10, paid 2 cents or some 10 to 12 times as much, ad valorem. It is a matter of surprise that this inequality has not been taken notice of sooner, and it is to be hoped that the new scale will be of a more equitable nature.

The annual meeting of Land Renters on the French Concession took place on the 8th inst. when the Provisional Committee, appointed to act in October last was re-appointed for three months. The usual routine of passing the estimates, &c., was gone through; but at the motion Mr. Hogg it was decided that no funds raised in virtue of the Budget should be expended after the Provisional Committee's term of office ceased.

A case, involving large interests, brought by the Trustees of the Estates of Duncan Fletcher and Archibald Campbell and the Bank of India, into the Supreme Court, sitting in Bankruptcy, has been decided in favor of the Trustees of the Estates of Fletcher and Campbell. The matter was entirely of a technical nature and turned upon the question of the legal right of Thos. Drysdale to raise money upon certain securities which the Trustees claimed as the property of A. Campbell and D. Fletcher as partners in the original Firm of Fletcher & Co. The amount lent on those securities was as much as Tls. 88,000 and the decision is somewhat hard upon the Bank of India as there can be no doubt that the securities were taken under the full impression that they were valid.

Another case of a very different description has attracted some attention namely, a claim for damages for an assault committed upon Mr. C. H. Dallas, by Mr. Tate, of Blain Tate and Co.'s. It seems that some story had got abroad in which Mr. Dallas's name was coupled in an unpleasant way with Mr. Tate's, and that Mr. Dallas, subsequently and subsequently at the office of that gentleman, he lost his temper and first requested him to leave the room and then kicked him as he was going through the doorway. The Jury gave damages for the Plaintiff to the amount of $400.

A fire broke out last evening, destroying the wine store of Messrs. Geo. Smith and Co, and also the drug shop of Dr. Vernon. Both were insured.—Record.

JAPAN.

Fortnightly Summary.

In our last issue of this report, we gave to our readers an authentic statement of the then existing state of affairs in the Inland sea. We have since heard, on doubtful authority, that Chiosia has consented to easier terms than those detailed in our last. We are convinced that this powerful prince will have consented to nothing that would in any way derogate from his dignity as a great Daimio of Japan, and the actual, though not from force of old tradition, the nominal equal of the Tycoon. He can, indeed, well afford to give to the Yedo potentate some small, nominal concession when he sees him paying, quarterly, a most inconvenient sum of money as indemnity to the Western powers for the Simonoseki affair.

Other political news there is absolutely none. We mentioned, the mail before last, that a drunken Yakonin had drawn upon two English officers, but had been happily prevented from coming into collision with them by some comrades who happened to be with him. We are glad to say that Kabuto Sentaro, the Japanese Commander-in-Chief, on hearing of the matter, immediately held a court-martial on the man, and sentenced him to severe punishment at the intercession of our own people, however, this sentence was commuted to the loss of his rank of sergeant. The whole affair was most amicably and satisfactorily arranged.

We mentioned in our last that H.B.M. Minister Sir Harry Parkes accompanied by Lady Parkes and a large number of friends has been for some days staying in Yedo. They returned on the 3rd inst evidently well pleased with their trip and the splendid weather they enjoyed during their stay. In the early part of the week the party visited the Prince of Satsuma's palace and grounds, a fact that speaks well for the improvement of friendly intercourse and the chance of our scheme of a comprehensive treaty with the Daimios being carried from theory into practice. This is the first time that foreigners have been allowed to visit the interior of any Daimio's "Yashki" in Yedo, except that of the Tycoon.

The Chamber of Commerce has sustained a severe loss in the abduction of Messrs. Frank Hall (of the houses of Walsh, Hall & Co.,) and A. J. Macpherson (of the well known firm of Macpherson and Marshall) from the chairs of President and Vice President. Both these gentlemen are on the point of leaving the settlement.

A fresh ballot took place on the 10th inst resulting in the election, by very considerable majorities, of Mr. R. Lindau (Lindau & Co.) as chairman and Mr. L. A. Joseph (David Sassoon Sons & Co) vice-chairman.

We have to note with regret the departure of Mr Von Brandt, Prussian Consul, who left us by the Dpuleiron the 12th inst. This gentleman arrived here with the Prussian Legation in 1860, when the treaties were exchanged, and returned in 1864 to take charge of Prussian interests, as Consul at this port.

H. B. Sir Harry and Lady Parkes entertained the élite of the community at a most brilliant ball on the night of Thursday, the 10th inst which went off very successfully; as many as nineteen ladies were present, which, for a small place like this, is a most unusual number.—Japan Times.

CRIMINAL SESSIONS.

JURY.

RICHARD CLARKE,
THOMAS ROSE.
R. BREWSTER SLATE,
AUGUSTUS G. ROMANO,
JOHN G. S. HASSAL,
APPOLLONIUS J. BERTHMAN,
EDWARDO PERRIRA CAMPOS.

REG. v CHUN-JOON-TUO.

Pleaded not guilty.

Ling A Ling declared. I am the wife of Wong a Yee who is the keeper of a druggists shop called the "Man Chai Tong" in Jervois street. I remember the 15th May, about 9-30 p.m. I was in my room up-stairs. Some person drew the door curtain aside. I called out who are you? and what do you want. I should know the man again; the prisoner is the man. He said there is nothing the matter and walked in. He took up a box which was on the stand near my bed, there were 2 pairs of bangles, one of stone, and the other gilt, and $9 in the box. When he took the box I struggled with him. When prisoner found I would not let go he drew a dagger and cut me on the right wrist. The wound was deep and bled a good deal. I raised an alarm and five men came in and beat me. They snatched my earrings. I fell down and prisoner kicked my breast. I raised an alarm and the neighbours came to my assistance and the man ran off. I lost sight of the prisoner. When I saw him again he was in custody (box, bangles, and money produced and identified) there was a light in my room when prisoner came, he blew it out. I did not see his face long, but can recognise the prisoner.

Ho A Lung declared. I am Master of the Man Son Tong, druggist shop, Queen's Road West. The first witness lives over my shop. I saw the prisoner taken into custody. I heard a noise upstairs and saw a man run off with a small box, (box produced) that is the box. I did not lose sight of the prisoner. He resisted the constable when taken into custody. He had a dagger in his hand.

Sanlano Lobo, police constable, 367 called.—I took the prisoner into custody. I heard an alarm and saw prisoner running, followed by a person. I stopped prisoner and, he struck at me with a knife. I saw a man in pursuit of prisoner (identifies Ahim) prisoner was running with a box in one hand, and a knife in the other. I attempted to take the knife from prisoner and he threw it away. The knife was not found. I took prisoner to the Station. I searched him and found a sheath (Sheath produced).

The jury returned a verdict of guilty against the prisoner on the 1st and 3rd counts, viz., larceny in a dwelling house with violence, and cutting and wounding. His Lordship remarked that many atrocious cases came before the Court, but he had not known one so bad as this for a long time. He would sentence the prisoner to two years' imprisonment, with hard labor, to be three times publicly whipped receiving, on each occasion 50 strokes with the regulation instrument.

REG. v NAGA MOOTOO.

The prisoner was charged with having committed an unnatural offence, but as the principal witness Recardo de Sanma was absent, the Hon. the Acting Attorney General could not proceed with the case and a nolle prosequi was entered accordingly. The witness's recognizances were estreated and the prisoner discharged.

ADOLPHUS B. ABBOTT

Regina v Loang and others. Piracy (continued) Mr. Bernard appeared for the prisoners.

Wong a Yee, declared. I was steersman of the Chun Chin Lee. On the 19th April last, we were off Sam Sa-moy Moon.

About 10 AM we met two boats one of them came towards us and opened fire, one boat ran alongside and about 20 men boarded our junk, they were armed with swords. I was wounded by a spear. I could see the other boat about 100 yards off. I was driven below and kept there 10 days. I was allowed to come on deck for necessary purposes. Sometimes when I came on deck I saw one or two other boats, sometimes a number of boats. I never saw this boat (the Tsat-pang) until I saw it at Sow-ki-wan. I do not know anything about the escape. I was below when the gunboat came. (Identifies 108 as belonging to Wong a Sing) I was it on board the Chun Chun Lee.

Cross examined by Mr Bernard.

There are many boxes of the same kind. About 20 men boarded. I never saw the boat which I saw at Sow-ki-wan since the day of attack until then. I saw seven many boats of the same description. I never saw one with the sails similar to that. I very seldom saw one. I dont know that 1st prisoner tried to jump overboard, I saw that his clothes were wet. The last witness pointed out the boat at Sow-ki-wah. (To the Court.) There was a conversation previously to my coming to Sow-ki-wan as to the kind of junk. Clerk and the agent conversed about it what was said by them was communicated to the Captain.

Lee A San declared. One of the seamen of the Chun Lun Lee. Our boat was attacked about 10 A.M. on the 11th April. I saw the first prisoner on board of our boat, he was doing sailor's work. I arrested him. I was on board our boat when we came to Sow-ki-wan. I saw that boat at the time

Extracts.

A Mute Minister.

The Saturday Review has taken the trouble to note down the oratorical performances of Lord Russell during the present session. He has it appears spoken in all nine times. On the 6th of February was the debate on the address.

It was supposed that on such an occasion the Prime Minister would give some intimation of his own views of the reasons which urged him to propose a Reform Bill, and of the extent to which he wished to carry it. But the opportunity so favourable to a frank exposition was turned to no account. Earl Russell had nothing to say beyond a bald and unimpressive explanation why he had opposed the rival Reform Bill of Lord Derby some seven years ago, and why he had thought it right to send a Commission to Jamaica. No one now wonders at his reserve, for it is clear that when he put the subject of Reform into the Queen's Speech he had not the most remote notion of its actual bearings on the constituencies of the kingdom. Certainly it is a merit in ignorance to be reserved; but then ignorance of his own intentions, and of the facts by which they should be guided, is not the special virtue of an English Prime Minister. The next occasion on which he favored the House was on the 8th of February, when he was understood to mutter some indistinct explanation of his reasons for not having proclaimed a general fast. The unimportance of this muttering seems to have been accepted as an excuse for its indistinctness. On the 14th of February he consumed ten minutes in repeating some arguments of the Lord Chancellor on certain provisions of the Cattle Bill. On the 19th he brought before the House of Lords the motion for suspending the Habeas Corpus in Ireland. On this occasion the length and the tone of his speech were not wholly inconsistent with the gravity of the subject. The next occasion on which the Premier addressed their Lordships was on bringing a Royal Message respecting annuities to Prince Alfred and the Princess Helena. There was but little to say, and that little was said just in a way to provoke comparison with Mr Gladstone's speech on the same subject. On the 1st of March he spoke for about ten minutes on the submission of Railway Bills to Committees; and on the 2nd, a lucid statement of Lord Derby, in reference to the trustees of the late King of the Belgians, drew from the Premier another speech of about the same duration. On the 13th of March it devolved upon the Premier to introduce a subject which required knowledge, illustration and eloquence—a subject which possessed no slight interest in itself, and which nothing but the baldest and most ungenial treatment could possibly have made uninteresting. When a Prime Minister comes down to Parliament with a proposition to change the form of government in a colony like Jamaica, which once was the richest and most famous of our Western possessions, and the recent history of which has excited universal curiosity and attention throughout the country, expectation is naturally on tiptoe, and the world prepares to listen to an argument at once statesmanlike and phil sophical. Those who listened in the House of Lords, on the afternoon of March the 13th, were doomed to a cruel disappointment. There was presented a question touching on one of the most momentous phases of Colonial policy—the relations of a small governing people to a large alien subject race. There were to be considered the reciprocal conditions of the two peoples, the effects of formerly slavery, the effects of emancipation, the influences of Colonial legislation, of education or its perversion—in fact every question that can engage the attention or the sympathies of thinking men. What had Lord Russell to say on these points, or on any of them? Not a word. If any one had come down to the House that night, wishing to learn from the Premier the causes which had led to the suicidal extinction of a Legislature whose former zealous use of its own privileges was shared by powerful politicians in England, he would have gone away no wiser than he came. All that the Queen's Prime Minister had to tell their Lordships was that Antigua, Barbadoes and Trinidad produce much more sugar now than they did in the time of slavery, whereas Jamaica produces much less. He certainly did glance at the delusion of the negroes, who expected to be paid continuous wages without giving continuous labour in return. But on the causes of this delusion—on the deception of the negro by his pretended friends, his illtreatment by his employer, the mischievous agitation of sectarian partisans, and the results of these different influences on the balance of poliical power in the Island—Lord Russell did not condescend to enlighten their Lordships. Had it not been for Earl Grey, the Peers would probably have had to vote on the question, under the influence of knowledge gained outside the House. The last important motion in the House of Lords was that of Lord Grey, who moved on the 15th of March for a Committee on the condition of Ireland. Here, again, was a subject for the statesman, the orator, and the patriot. The origin of Fenianism, its coincidence with, or difference from, the traditionary grievances of the Irish people; the relations of landlord and tenant; the causes of emigration; the problem of the Established Church or of three established churches—these provided material sufficient for a statesman possessing clear views and a speaker capable of clear expression. But these topics were left to Lord Grey and Lord Dufferin, who did justice to them, while Lord Russell contented himself with a string of self-complacent platitudes about the honesty of Willie Tone, the recent rise of wages in Ireland, and the great difficulty either of pulling down the Protestant Establishment or setting up any other. Even this, according to the Queen's Prime Minister, was difficult or dangerous or inexpedient. And all this was said without the faintest sign of shame, humiliation, or self-reproach. A third of the Session has passed by. Within that period we see how much Lord Russell has spoken and what he has said. It becomes a matter of serious inquiry, "Who is the Premier?" It is not, indeed, desirable that a Prime Minister should be always on his legs, always talking or always replying to opponents. But it is expected that on great subjects he should be able to give dignified expression to decide opinions. He is expected to garnish a Bill for the abolition of a Colonial Parliament with stale quotations about hogsheads of sugar, nor to reply to Lord Grey's speech with a few halting sentences about the difficulty of dealing with the Irish Church or with Irish Roman Catholics. To all appearance, Lord Russell is becoming what the Greeks called a Mute Personage, in the great drama which is going on about him, and in which he is supposed to play a part. And it is felt that his silence is even better than his speech. This is not a fitting part for the head of an English Ministry to take.

A Lady's Wardrobe.—A curious case has just been on trial in Cincinnati. It was an action brought by the wife of General Eli Long to recover the value of two trunks which were shipped at Louisville for Cincinnati, on the 5th Sept. last, and lost. The following is a list contained in one of the trunks, and which the lawyers claimed were only such as "legitimately belonged to a lady's wardrobe:"—Mozambique dress skirt, $20; checked grenadine, $40; black alpaca do., $47; silver coloured grenadine do., $40; delaine do., $20; barege dress, $15; drab silk do. and mantle, $180; drab silk bonnet, $10; corsets, $20; cambric under-skirts, $11; muslin under-skirts, $52, two Balmoral skirts, wrappers, $20; night wrappers, $36; one dozen embroidered linen chemises, $192; velvet hat, $15; nine silk sashes, $17; toilet soap, $12; lace drawers, $40; silk basque, $30; velvet back Bible, $10; ivory comb, $12; fans, $20; jewellery, $81; gold bracelet, $140; pearl ear-rings, $90; silver salt-cellars lined with gold, $60; gold buckle, $30. Total, including a few other articles, $2,001. A list was also read of articles in one of the trunks not lost, which contained about a dozen dresses, ranging in price from $60 up to $140. In giving his charge the judge said—As to the baggage which a lady might carry, the jury should inquire whether there was proof showing that anything useless or unnecessary was included in the catalogue of this lady's wearing apparel. In such a case a jury may consider the condition in which a lady moves—whether she was a person of fashionable tastes—accustomed during childhood to being indulged—if brought up with large expectations—and a fund of her own, to furnish her own wardrobe. Some females, intelligent and refined, were compelled to wear very poor clothing; but if others had the means to purchase more expensive articles they had the right to wear them, and a right to put them in their trunks when they travel. In regard to their jewellery, a traveller had a right to carry such, provided they were in small parcels, and were such as were in common use—not of course a tiara of jewels or pearls, worth thousands of dollars, and only suitable to be used at a coronation, or some splendid exhibition of female beauty; but all that was appropriate in the adornment of a woman in genteel society they might well allow. Verdict, of $1,800 for the lady.—Globe.

PROFESSOR WHEELER has the honor to inform the community that he has removed his Hair Cutting Establishment from the Oriental Hotel to the premises between Mr. A. Boyer's and Miss Rose's Millinery establishments, on Wellington Street. He begs to tender his sincere thanks for their past favors and trusts that the change of abode may be the means of increasing his list of patrons. Attached is also a commodious Dye Room, where those who are prematurely grey, and anxious to rejuvenate their appearance can put on youth's most glossy locks with the magician's celerity. He is happy to inform them that, he has also in operation his refreshing and invigorating Shower Bath, which one has but to try to appreciate, especially during the summer months. Everything that luxury and comfort can desire is to be found in his new establishment.
